

ROSS VENOKUR: BIOS

One-line bio

Ross Venokur is a director, writer, and creator of original animated films, series, and entertainment franchises for family audiences.

Short

Ross Venokur is a director, writer, and creator of original animated films, series, and entertainment franchises for family audiences. He wrote and directed the animated feature films Charming and Rally Road Racers, co-created one of television's first CG-animated primetime series (Game Over), and has developed original projects with Disney, DreamWorks, Warner Bros., Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, and many of the industry's leading studios. His work combines comedy, heart, and imaginative world-building to create stories audiences return to across film, television, and emerging platforms.

Medium

Ross Venokur is a director, writer, and creator of original animated films, series, and entertainment franchises for family audiences. Over a career spanning more than three decades, he has built original stories across feature films, television, publishing, and digital media, combining comedy, heart, and imaginative world-building with franchise-minded storytelling.

He wrote and directed the animated feature films Charming and Rally Road Racers, directed A.C.O.R.N.S., and co-created Game Over, one of television's first CG-animated primetime series. His work has taken him to Disney, DreamWorks, Warner Bros., Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, The Jim Henson Company, Carsey-Werner, and other leading studios, where he has collaborated with talent including John Cleese, Demi Lovato, Sia, J.K. Simmons, Jimmy O. Yang, Sharon Horgan, and many others.

Today, Ross continues to develop original animated films, series, and entertainment properties for theatrical, streaming, broadcast, and digital platforms. Whether creating original IP or bringing established brands to life, his focus remains the same: crafting unforgettable characters, emotionally engaging stories, and imaginative worlds that entertain audiences of all ages.

Long

Ross Venokur is a director, writer, and creator of original animated films, series, and entertainment franchises for family audiences. Over a career spanning more than three decades, he has developed and brought to life original stories across feature films, television, publishing, and emerging media, earning a reputation for blending comedy, heart, and imaginative world-building with franchise-minded storytelling.

Ross wrote and directed the animated feature films Charming and Rally Road Racers, directed A.C.O.R.N.S., and co-created Game Over, one of television's first CG-animated primetime series. Earlier in his career, he wrote for television series including Kenan & Kel and The Tick, while continuing to develop original projects with Disney, DreamWorks, Warner Bros., Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, The Jim Henson Company, Carsey-Werner, and numerous independent studios. Throughout his career, he has collaborated with an extraordinary range of artists and performers, including John Cleese, Demi Lovato, Sia, Jimmy O. Yang, J.K. Simmons, Sharon Horgan, and many others.

Alongside his work in film and television, Ross has created original intellectual property across books, digital platforms, and emerging media, continually exploring new ways to build enduring entertainment brands. His work spans theatrical releases, streaming, broadcast television, YouTube, and original franchise development, reflecting a career defined by creativity, adaptability, and a passion for bringing memorable characters and worlds to audiences everywhere.

Whether directing an animated feature, creating an original series, or developing the next generation of family entertainment franchises, Ross approaches every project with the same philosophy: great family entertainment should be funny, emotionally honest, visually imaginative, and timeless. His work is united by a belief that the best stories create worlds that audiences want to return to again and again.